

Santa's workshop in the Preschool

As the preschool children await the birth of Jesus at Christmas and light each of the Advent candles, their classroom is filled with Christmas cheer. Our preschoolers were taught by role-modelling in our dramatic play center which became 'Santa's Workshop'. They spoke each morning to someone on the North Pole Communicator with a special message just for them. As they kept busy making reindeer food and playdough Christmas cookies, they had fun dressing up like reindeers, elves and Santa Claus too. Taking orders, making toys, wrapping presents and feeding the reindeer are just a few things an elf has to do as they helped Santa prepare for his special visit! Santa checked the list twice to see "who's naughty and who's nice" (All of our preschoolers are on the "nice" list!) ... The elves made sure Santa's bag was filled for the Christmas rush and ready to go!
